ANALYZE THE ODDS was allowed to drop back after breaking forwardly placed, departed the backstretch from path three, picked up interest getting sent outward heading for the top of the lane, fanned into path seven, becoming the widest of all, kicked into his best with approximately a sixteenth remaining, overhauled the runner up in the final jumps and edged away. MORNING BREEZ kept watch on the front runners firmly rated in the three path, was set down to a drive tipping a bit wider entering the stretch, lugged in, initiating contact with AVEENU MALCAINU in the vicinity of three-sixteenths marker, separated from that opponent then began to lug in once more, picked up the pace of that waywardness after being flashed the stick work right handed prior to being fed a shot from the same side, crossed over in front of the earlier-mentioned rival leaving the eighth pole, with only a long length of space between them, leading the other to get checked hard, continued onward and get reeled in in deep stretch. RETONOVA away a half length the slowest after bumping lightly with PRESENCE OF MIND, underwent a ground-saving trip, moved up in hand on the turn, had clearance along the inside corridor when given his cue at the head of the stretch, bid for the next furlong before flattening out. SEA FOAM hung out four wide on the turn, was angled out six wide during the initial portion of the stretch, rallied mildly for the last major check. AVEENU MALCAINU attained a forward position after the start, circled past a rival to take over the two path at the conclusion of the backstretch, was in hand taking over the lead at the three-eighths pole, spun about three wide into the lane, was bumped into by the second place finisher soon afterwards, went onward before being forced in by the same errant foe leaving the eighth pole, checked hard when cut off, failed to regain any interest. WHAT A CATCH put to a brisk hand ride after leaving the gate, was outsprinted for the top, went on to track the front runners, rated in the pocket, was placed to a ride soon after entering the turn, was maneuvered into path four from the five-sixteenths pole to the three-sixteenths marker, tired. PRESENCE OF MIND bumped lightly with RETONOVA right after the field had been released, rode the rail down the backstretch but was in path two by the three-eighths pole, arrived into the stretch and had no rally. ULTIMATEENTICEMENT vied from along the inside, under some hand encouragement, proved no match when challenged by a well-rated AVEENU MALCAINU as the half was being completed, backed away steadily after relinquishing.
