Positive ROI Report explanation:

- Trainer angles appear on this report if the trainer has a return-on-investment of more than $2 and:
3 starts and a winning percent of 100% or
4-6 starts and a winning percent of at least 50% or
7-15 starts and a winning percent of at least 40% or
16-30 starts and a winning percent of at least 30% or
31 or more starts and a winning percent of at least 25%
- ROI means Return on Investment. In this report as in all other DRF data, ROI is measured based on a $2 payoff. An ROI of $4.50 means that if you were to wager $2 on a given trainer angle, every single time the angle is in play, you would receive back $4.50 for every $2 bet.
- To make this report, an ROI must exceed $2.00 for every $2.00 bet.
- At the top of the report is a list of the top 10 trainer angles across all tracks running in a given day. They are ranked strictly by ROI.
- Secondly is a list of the top 10 trainer/jock combinations across all tracks running in a given day. They are ranked strictly by ROI for the year, though additional, more recent information is given.
- Below the top 10 trainer angles and top 10 trainer/jock combination, each racetrack is listed alphabetically, and each positive ROI angle is listed chronologically, from the first race to the last race, dependent on winning angles being present in each race.
